Briefing

Good morning gentlemen, an early start today. Our first mission we see us fly a familiarisation flight of the area. After forming up we will fly west to the bf-109 base at Ronai, their callsign is Drachen. We then turn eastwards towards the bomber base of KG77 with their Ju88's at Evreux before turning north west for home. We are not to go too close to the front lines and especially not Caen which is seeing heavy fighting. Even though this is a kind of training flight, keep alert, we've already had one accident today. Hopefully our flight will not attract enemy aircraft, but keep your eyes open all the same. Right, lets go!

It is imperative that we do all we can to stop the allied advance through Normandy. We will go up with 2 schwarms, stay low to try and avoid being picked up by enemy fighters. Got it!? OK lets go!

Gather round... Gryphons Ju-88's are going fishing today looking to catch allied boats with their torpedoes. Just one problem though, they don't have any bait, this is where we come in... We will be the bait, not for the boats, but for the aircraft that might be protecting them. There is an important ship in dock at Cherbourg, what we will do is fake an attack on the ship in order to draw any fighters to us. In the meantime, Gryphon will fly west, low past Le Havre and attack any allied shipping they come across. Got it?

Hello everyone, we are returning to the front line today. Our targets will be 2 warehouse buildings in an industrial area between Caen and Ouistreham, just to the north of Pegasus bridge. The allies have been using 2 large buildings to snipe and spot our troops. Alto's schwarm will bomb the buildings, whilst Karl's schwarm will orbit overhead to watch for enemy fighters. Right! Lets get to work!

Okay, everyone seated? Good. We are to undertake a high risk mission to strike an enemy supply dump in the forest of Cerisy. Intelligence has reported fuel and ammo stores are likely kept here. We don't know the exact position of the supply dump in the forest, so you will need to keep a good lookout when you arrive over target. The cloud is low with rain, hopefully the allies won't expect much activity from us and we can use surprise. However, I still expect fighter sweeps in the area so stay sharp. OK? Let's go!
